Alina Ionela Bîrsan

I have been working in the last ten years in the non-governmental field, which means a very dynamic work environment, with a lot of learning opportunities.

I am the coordinator of "Mamele citesc" NGO, with a ten years experience in the administration and coordination of more than 20 European financed projects. My vision is a world where children and parents read together and spend less time watching their televisions and phones.

Since 2011, I have been working in the non-governmental sector, as project manager, communication expert, training coordinator, but also as an administrator of a social economy network with over 50 members from Europe and Asia.

digital storytelling methods successfully used by social enterprises to connect with audiences, inspire change, and build trust. Each method is backed by real-world examples from the Social Firms Europe CEFEC network and similar initiatives:

Digital Storytelling Methods

Short Impact Videos

focused on a person's transformation - Pub Spółdzielczy (Poland) created videos showing how employment at the pub changed the lives of individuals with mental health challenges.

Photo Diaries & "Day-in-the-Life" Series

A sequence of photos with brief captions showing a worker's typical day - Center Ponovne Uporabe (Slovenia) shared "reuse stories" of both the products and the people transforming them.

Employee Testimonials & First-Person Blogs

AfB Group (Germany) publishes employee spotlights tied to ecological and social impact.

Interactive Digital Reports

WEB vzw (Belgium) & Community Wood Recycling (UK) uses digital reports aligned with SDGs showing impact like "kilos reused" and CO<sub>2</sub> saved.

Mini-Documentaries

GPE Mainz (Germany) features video tours and narratives from their hotels, shops, and beekeeping sites, showing inclusive employment in action.
